

County Votes Out the Act and Amendments

Hempstead County and Hope, like the rest of the state, remained in the Democratic fold, gave Gov. Faubus a huge majority and voted against all the acts and amendments.

A total of 36 of 37 boxes at 11 a.m. (Friday) was still out at that time, gave Democrats 3,001, Republicans 1,031 and State Rights 210.

Gov. Faubus received 3,582 votes to 1,031 for Britt. All the amendments and the single act were defeated by lopsided majorities. For totals see table at bottom of this page.

The road tax managed to get by, but for a while the first returns were against it. The vote was 2,001 for, 1,566 against.

In Saline Township Lynn Galt-right apparently was elected constable. In the Saraloga and Columbus boxes he received a total of 54 votes as compared to 48 for Artie Archer and 16 for Homer Young.

Although Faubus comfortably carried all but one box in the county (Ward 4-2 was 74 to 67 for Britt) several boxes went Republican. Practically all the Hope boxes balloted well for the Republicans nationally and several of the county boxes went for Nixon.

28 Man Write-in Elects Sheriff

PORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—Fred Hays, apparently won a 28-man write-in contest for Sebastian County sheriff.

Nearly complete returns gave Hays 3,593 votes to 2,477 for the second man, A.M. Jones. E. P. Williamson was third with 1,383 votes.

Charles Nichols, a Negro candidate, trailed far down in the pack. The unusual write-in contest developed after the death of Sheriff Prentice Maddux, the Democratic nominee for an eighth term.

Amendments and Act Are Soundly Beaten

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas voters turned thumbs down Tuesday on a controversial school closing proposal presented by Gov. Orval E. Faubus as a last-ditch weapon against integration.

The measure, proposed constitutional Amendment 52, was defeated by a resounding three to one margin in the general election. Also rejected, by margins ranging up to two to one, were two other proposed constitutional amendments and an initiated minimum wage act.

The vote with 2,389 precincts in the state, showed:

Amendment 50: With 1,958 precincts reported, 116,710 for and 177,932 against.

Amendment 51: With 1,959 precincts reported, 129,063 for and 166,107 against.

Amendment 52: With 1,955 precincts reported, 77,244 for and 238,614 against.

Initiated Act No. 1: With 1,950 precincts reported, 118,287 for and 188,824 against.

Faubus, who backed all four proposals, said, "Well, I guess we can live without them."

The school closing measure failed to carry in any of the state's 75 counties, and voting was relatively close only in Dallas County.

Voting generally followed geographic lines with the amendment pulling a more favorable vote in counties with a heavy Negro population and a consequent threat of an integration problem.

The Dallas County vote of 20 of 23 precincts showed 1,034 for the amendment and 1,380 against.

At the other end of the ladder was Crawford County, which rejected the proposal by almost 10 to one — 4,777 votes for and 552 against in returns from all 28 precincts.

Van Buren, the Crawford County seat, has had racial integration at the high school level since 1957.

Defeat of Amendment 52 was a major victory for educational leaders, who fought the measure almost from the moment Faubus fathered it as a key proposal in his anti-integration program in the 1959 Legislature.

Only Faubus and diehard segregationist groups endorsed the measure. It was opposed by most of the state's major political forces, including the 14,000-member Arkansas Education Association.

State Remains Democratic by Big Majority

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas turned a cold shoulder to a state of unpledged States Rights Party elections and climbed aboard John F. Kennedy's Democratic bandwagon in Tuesday's general election.

The state's eight electoral votes moved into the Kennedy column less than four hours after the polls closed at the state of elections pledged to the Massachusetts senator pulled away from a Republican state for Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The National States Rights Party's state placed on the ballot by petition was never in the running. Almost complete returns gave the ticket only 22,785 votes.

The Democratic ticket polled 173,705 votes and the Republican ticket 144,515 in returns from 1907 of 2,389 precincts.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus led five incumbent state officials back into the statehouse with an easy victory over his Republican opponent Henry Britt of Hot Springs.

Faubus polled 231,290 votes to 100,497 for Britt in returns from 1069 precincts.

Lt. Gov. Nathan Gordon Secretary of State C.G. Hall Treasurer J. Vance Clayton Auditor Jimmie Jones and Land Commissioner Sam Jones were unopposed for reelection. Frank Holt the Democratic nominee for attorney general also was unopposed.

Sen. John L. McClellan who won the Democratic nomination without opposition—defeated a write-in opponent Marvin Puchs of Havana.

Puchs collected only 314 votes to 62,599 for McClellan in returns from 551 precincts.

Puchs who called himself an independent conservative was not considered a serious candidate. And many precincts didn't report votes in this race.

McClellan will take office in January for his fourth six-year term. He heads the powerful Senate Operations Committee.

Rep. Dale Alford also had a write-in opponent Republican L. J. Churchill of Dover and this race was somewhat more spirited but Alford won with ease.

Alford who first won his office as a write-in candidate against Democratic nominee Brooks Hays in 1956 who wore the Democratic mantle this time and his victory was assured early in the evening. Churchill announced as a write-in candidate after efforts to get on.

Screenon Is Blasted Out by a Write-in

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
State Sen. Jerry J. Screenon, whose Democratic primary victory ended in an election contest suit, apparently lost his bid for re-election to a write-in candidate.

Another incumbent, Chancellor Franklin Wilder in the 10th Chancery District, was defeated, by an independent candidate.

Returns from 77 of 119 precincts in the 19th Senatorial District gave Charles L. George, Cabot High School principal, 6,397 votes to 4,247 for Screenon.

George rolled up a majority of more than four to one over Screenon in Loneke County, home county of J.T. Gunter of Austin, who lost to Screenon in the Aug. 9 Democratic primary but then filed a contest suit.

That suit is still pending, but its outcome won't make any real difference if complete returns make George the victor.

Screenon's best majority came in White County. His home county of Prairie with nearly complete returns had Screenon only about 300 votes ahead.

George held a narrow lead in Woodruff County.

Wilder bowed to Hugh Bland, who led 11,958 to 8,248 with returns nearly complete.

Wilder and his Democratic primary opponent, Port Smith Municipal Judge James L. Langston, both were indicted on charges growing out of that campaign.

Richard Nixon Concedes With Congratulation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic John F. Kennedy today won the presidency — the youngest man and the first Roman Catholic ever elected to the nation's highest office.

See-sawing Minnesota finally came to rest in the 43-year-old Massachusetts senator's camp at 12:30 p.m. EST and put him over the 260 electoral votes he needed to wrap up mathematically a victory that for many hours had been prospectively his. Kennedy's electoral vote count at that point was 272.

Republican Richard M. Nixon's electoral total at that time was 177.

vision of an American on the move apparently clinched through to victory in the presidential election early Wednesday.

The 43-year-old Massachusetts Democrat hammered down the White House ambitions of Vice President Richard M. Nixon and rewrote political history in the process.

Kennedy became the first Roman Catholic and the youngest man to reach the shimmering goal of the nation's highest office.

In vain, Nixon clutched at hopes that belated rallies in such vital states as Michigan, Illinois and his own California could swing things his way.

But at last, at 3:21 a.m. Eastern Standard Time, he virtually conceded defeat. If the present trend continues, Sen. Kennedy will be the next president of the United States.

His wife, Pat, went on TV before viewers could coast.
At that instant, Nixon actually was ahead of Kennedy in the number of states won or in which he was leading—but not in the number of vital electoral votes that decide the presidency. And Kennedy held only a slender edge in the popular, nationwide vote of the millions of Americans.

With 269 electoral votes needed for victory, Kennedy had bagged or was ahead in 24 states with 335. Nixon had taken or was leading in 25 states with 188.

So while the outcome was pretty much in the cards once the first substantial returns rolled in, the results were by no means a massive, overpowering landslide for Kennedy.

The senator simply scooped up states with more people and more electoral votes; just as he had set out to do.

However, the victory was accomplished whatever its size. It restored the White House to Democratic domain after eight Republican years in which Kennedy said this country was standing still and losing prestige.

Nixon had matched Kennedy in staging the hardest most arduous political campaigns America ever had seen. But he couldn't match the magic appeal of his mentor, President Eisenhower.

teachers—if they returned to work today.

The union also agreed to meet with three top labor leaders acting as intermediaries. In the dispute, the walkout started Monday
when the UFT struck over demands for improved working conditions and other issues. About 250 of the city's 337 schools had been picketed. Some of the city's one million students refused to cross picket lines and there were reports of minor vandalism.

The UFT, which claims a membership of 10,000 among the city's 40,000 teachers, had asserted the strike was picking up momentum.
But the Board of Education while admitting disruptions in operations said all the schools had remained open and would continue to do so. Supervisory personnel had been pressed into service and classes doubled up.

The schools were closed Tuesday Election Day.

The UFT has sought duty-free lunch periods, more sick pay, and higher salaries than the current range of $4,800 to $8,300 a year.

The Board of Education already has agreed in principle to two other demands: a union checkoff system and steps toward collective bargaining.

Numerical control of the House fell to the Democrats only minutes before Nixon appeared before a rally of his followers in Los Angeles—and on nationwide TV—to acknowledge though not in so many words that he had lost.

The way he phrased it was that if the present trend continued Kennedy would be the next president.

"Once the decision is made," Nixon said, "we unite behind the man who is elected. I want Sen.
Kennedy to know—and I want all of you to know that certainly if this trend does continue he will have my wholehearted support."

And he wound up with:
"Congratulations to Sen. Kennedy for his fine race in this campaign."

Mrs. Nixon broke down and started to cry while Nixon was making his statement at a nationally televised GOP gathering in Los Angeles. Nixon, however, kept smiling.

It was a mixed-up, topsy-turvy see-saw election with plenty of ballot splitting.

Some states went for Kennedy but picked Republicans for senator or governor. His home state of Massachusetts did just that—grinding out a comfortable majority for the Democratic presidential nominee re-electing Republican Sen. Leverett Saltonstall and replacing a Democrat with a Republican in the state house.

Some states went for Nixon but kept Democratic senators — Virginia, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Oregon for example.

Several states that nearly all the political soothsayers awarded in advance to one man or the other crossed things up by going in the opposite direction.

Ohio was supposed to wind up with Kennedy. Nixon picked it off.
Delaware was supposed to be a Nixon state but turned to Kennedy.

So it went.

the walkout started Monday
when the UFT struck over de-

of the city's 337 schools had been picketed. Some of the city's one million students refused to cross
picket lines and there were reports of minor vandalism.

The UFT, which claims a mem-

40,000 teachers, had asserted the strike was picking up momentum.
But the Board of Education while

classes doubled up.

The schools were closed Tues-

The UFT has sought duty-free
lunch periods, more sick pay, and
higher salaries than the current

two other demands: a union check-

Family Debts Haunt Wife

By ELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen:
There are bills on every hand. My husband earns good wages but he doesn't care whether payments on our debts are ever made. Recently I went to my son's to take care of his wife and baby when she arrived home from the hospital. I was gone only five days, but long enough for my husband to squander several hundred dollars. Yesterday, when I paid a couple of bills, he gave me a hard time. These bills happen to do with this family who live here at home.

His car and his comfort come first. The rest can be taken care of as he sees fit. I have been seriously thinking of taking a job and dropping out of the picture. I got these bills paid. If my husband knew where I was he'd bother me till I quit and come home leaving the bills still unpaid.

I have a 12 year old son at home. I had to leave as he would think it was me causing the trouble. My husband doesn't run around with other women. He just thinks his car needs the attention. Other people can't worry. —I Give Up.

Dear I-Give-Up: Never give up. There is always a way out. The simplest and surest way for you is to apply whatever household

Questions Kasavubu as Congo Envoy

By MAX HARRELSON

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations disclosed today that leaders of the Congo Parliament have challenged the right of President Joseph Kasavubu to speak for their country in the forthcoming General Assembly debate.

The views of the parliamentary chiefs were transmitted to U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld by Ambassador Alex Quinson-Sackey of Ghana, one of the sponsors of a move to seal a delegation representing deposed President Patrice Lumumba.

The pro-Lumumba Parliament was dissolved by Kasavubu last September and has been idle under the army regime of Col. Joseph Mobutu.

The communications were disclosed in advance of an afternoon assembly session on the Congo at which at which Kasavubu will speak.

Joseph Okito, president of the Senate, in a message to Hammarskjöld, accused Kasavubu of trampling the fundamental law of the country under foot and collaborating with Belgian nationals to maintain power.

Okito called on the United Nations to seal the Lumumba delegation headed by Thomas Kanza.

The assembly delayed the start of its latest Congo debate until this afternoon to give the Congo chief of state time to marshal his arguments.

Ranked against him were Ghana, Guinea and six other Asian or African nations sponsoring a resolution to give the Congo's vacant assembly seat to representatives of Lumumba, Kasavubu's chief rival.

The eight-nation bloc want Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to get the pro-Lumumba parliament back into session, believing that it will return the fiery nationalist to office. Kasavubu suspended the parliament in September after the Congo army commander, Col. Joseph Mobutu,

When the Congo was voted into the United Nations Sept. 21, rival delegations representing Kasavubu and Lumumba claimed the seat. The assembly dumped the棘手 problem into the lap of its credentials committee, which is not scheduled to meet until December.

There appeared little doubt that Kasavubu, as chief of state of the Congo, would be able to speak without challenge from the floor. But if he attempts to "take over" the Congo's vacant U.N. seat, he may run into sharp opposition from nations supporting Lumumba's cause.

When the Congo was voted into the United Nations Sept. 21, rival delegations representing Kasavubu and Lumumba claimed the seat. The assembly dumped the棘手 problem into the lap of its credentials committee, which is not scheduled to meet until December.

There appeared little doubt that Kasavubu, as chief of state of the Congo, would be able to speak without challenge from the floor. But if he attempts to "take over" the Congo's vacant U.N. seat, he may run into sharp opposition from nations supporting Lumumba's cause.

Guests Flee a Large Hotel

NEW YORK (AP) — A smoke-planned fire sent thick black smoke billowing through Manhattan's largest hotel, the New Yorker, forcing 300 guests to flee. One man died of a heart attack and 10 others were overcome by smoke.

A possible disaster was averted at the 40-floor hotel Monday by the prompt arrival of five fire companies and fire rescue squads.

Firemen and hotel employees ranged through the hotel evacuating the smoking, crying victims. Firemen said the blaze broke out in an unoccupied three-room suite on the 16th floor of the 2000-room hotel and quickly spread down a hall after burning the suite. The blaze was confined to that floor.

A painter, Emanuel Venczel, 61, died of a heart attack. Another painter was in critical condition from smoke inhalation.

Many primitive peoples practice asceticism as a means of acquiring supernatural power. They abstain from food, drink, or sleep to inflict pain upon themselves through winter bathing, whipping or blood letting.

ousted Lumumba in a coup. Kasavubu declared on arrival Monday he would speak against those seeking to breach the "sacred principles of a free people and to impose on us a neo-colonialism which is humiliating and unbearable." Earlier in Paris he said he would call for withdrawal from the U.N. Congo command of troops from Ghana and Guinea.

Kasavubu and Mobutu contend that the Congo is in too chaotic a state for parliamentary rule to be practical at this stage. They also believe the conciliation mission is dominated by governments that want to see Lumumba back in power.

There appeared little doubt that Kasavubu, as chief of state of the Congo, would be able to speak without challenge from the floor. But if he attempts to "take over" the Congo's vacant U.N. seat, he may run into sharp opposition from nations supporting Lumumba's cause.

Tech Alumni Pick President

RUSSELLVILLE Ark. (AP) - The Arkansas Tech Alumni Association has elected W. E. Hule of Crossett as its new president.

The election result was announced today by G. R. Turrentine executive secretary of the association.

"Do you like living in the suburbs?"

"Oh, I grew up in Mammoth, Ark. so I'm quite used to the vagaries of suburban life. Do you come from another part of the country?"

"No, I grew up in New York. I live in White Plains now. But New York still seems home."

"What is it like to grow up in New York?" Janet asked.

He thought for a minute. "Actually, I guess ours was a rather peculiar household. Not a very close family. My parents both taught. Mother at Hunter and Dad at Columbia. I think their philosophy was to get the fledglings out of the nest and let them beat their own wings as quickly as possible. I have a brother 15 years older than I. He's an archaeologist in Greece now. I haven't seen him in years, and we rarely write." He spoke slowly, as though surprised to dust off memories of a dim book-filled apartment and people who came and went, intent on their own pursuits.

"It sounds rather lonely," Janet said.

"I don't remember being lonely. Of course I was on my own most of the time. Whenever I had a problem, Father had a classical quotation to fit it. The apartment was full of strange collections of things, and what few visitors we had were even stranger. I don't think anyone was interested in its being attractive... or even particularly clean."

"I don't dare miss this one. I don't know what my baby sister will think as it is."

"Meet me here next week after class." It was half question, half command.

"Yes, I will," Janet fled to hail the cab she saw cruising in the direction of the drugstore.

"It did not occur to her, as she sank back breathlessly within the welcome dark confines of the impersonal taxi, that John had died on the day she met Jason Whitling."

CHAPTER I X

"After John's death, there had been no one with whom Janet could discuss the small unimportant events in her life. Now she

THE STORY: Janet Hamilton

a young widow, is attending night school to obtain a teaching certificate. She becomes ill after class and Dr. Jason Whitling, the instructor, helps her catch her train to her suburb.

CHAPTER VII

Janet waited, deliberately, for Dr. Whitling after class the next Tuesday. They went directly to the same drugstore.

"My conscience bothered me telling you ride home alone when you were ill."

"And mine bothers me - keeping you away from home at this hour," Janet said.

"His heavy black eyebrows rose to a peak on his high forehead. 'Oh, don't give it a thought. I don't get to know many students. It's a pleasure to become acquainted with one.'"

Their talk turned to the courses he proposed she take. He examined the transcript she had brought and went over the catalogue with her, outlining on a scratch pad in his scrawly hand a suggested course which would meet her requirements. She raised her head to thank him and caught sight of the clock above the soda fountain. She had missed her train.

"It must be a nuisance, this long commute," he said when she commented on the time with a worried thought for Gerry. "But now that you have missed it, let's have another cup of coffee. Do you like living in the suburbs?"

"Oh, I grew up in Mammoth, Ark. so I'm quite used to the vagaries of suburban life. Do you come from another part of the country?"

"No, I grew up in New York. I live in White Plains now. But New York still seems home."

City Manager Fails in Paragould Vote

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) - Voters have rejected a proposal to change to the city manager form of city government there.

A two to one majority favoring retaining the present mayor-council form.

Returns from all 13 precincts in Tuesday's election showed 1,018 votes for city manager and 2,049 votes against.

Paragould is the third city to turn down city manager government.

Port Smith rejected it earlier this year and El Dorado defeated it last year.

Little Rock, Hope, Camden and Brinkley have adopted that form of government since 1957.

an odd bunch."

"What about the professor?" Marian went on.

Janet felt herself blushing.

"Oh, Marian! It isn't like college where teachers and students get to know one another. It's simply appear in class and vanish afterwards. They go back to their apartments or boarding houses or head for outer space for all I know."

Sensing Janet's uneasiness, Marian opened her mouth to pursue the subject when Gene interrupted. "It would be good for you and for the boys if you did make some male friends."

Sergeant Hoag has been awfully kind to Johnny and Bruce," Janet said. "He had them over last night. Johnny said he roasted frankfurters in the fireplace for all of them. He's a nice person. I wish he'd marry again."

She had been about to say she wished he'd marry Gerry Anderson, but was afraid she might be betraying a confidence.

"Don't tell me Cliff Hoag's the man?" Marian sat upright and raised her eyebrows. "Now that would be a bomb!"

"I could do worse," Janet answered.

"I'm betting on the professor," Marian said.

"What professor?" asked Frank Lyman, who had gone out for another log and was now busy roasting ashes into live coals. "Has Janet found a professor?"

Janet pursed his thick lips questioningly.

"Janet's mad for her teacher at school," Marian said jokingly. "But Janet knew she was probing. Is that right?" Gene lowered fresh glasses onto the coffee table. "Do you see him out of class, Janet?"

"Oh, he's a gem!" Rapidly, she dismissed him as a musty fuddy-duddy, immersed in his extra books.

With relief she welcomed the appearance of Bruce, who, with the candor natural to six-year-olds, announced, "I wanna go home."

Selects Vols, Ohio State to Win Saturday

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Who says political forecasters are the only ones who have trouble with close November contests? In 56 college football decisions last week this corner took a 17-year low and was right only 32 times. That's an average of .570. The seasonal record now is 282-105—730.

So starting on a new campaign: Ohio State over Iowa: Hawkeyes have the support of their own fans plus the incentive of trying to give coach Evashevski a victory in his first home game. But Ohio State has Tom Matte and Bob Ferguson. They are more important. This one is on TV.

Minnesota over Purdue: The fictional Tom Brown went to Rugby and Oxford but Purdue will become the eighth team this season to learn there is nothing fictional about the Tom Brown who anchors the Minnesota line.

Tennessee over Mississippi: The blue-plato, special upset of the week. Tennessee's homecoming game.

Washington over California: The Huskies are headed for the Rose Bowl designation.

Duke over Wake Forest: If Duke wins the Blue Devils are the Atlantic Coast Conference champs.

Navy over Virginia: The Cavaliers are the losingest team in college football. Joe Bellino adds another setback to their string.

Pittsburgh over Army: The Panthers probably are the best team in the East—and quite likely have been all season despite their 4-2 record.

Baylor over Southern California: They have a different type of sunshine in Texas.

Yale over Princeton: The championship of the venerable Big Three goes to the winner; probably the Ivy League title as well.

Small Colleges Win Statistics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
with the 1960 major college football season heading into the home stretch only two teams even close to the total offense figure that has been standard for champions for nearly 20 years.

Latest figures from the NCAA Service Bureau show that for seven games New Mexico State has averaged 394.6 yards by running and passing. Memphis State 384.5 for eight games.

For the past 19 years every total offense champion has averaged at least 400 yards a game.

In the same way only New Mexico State with 38.9 points a game and Memphis State with 31.1 are scoring above the 30-point average attained by every major college scoring champion since 1939.

Stanley and Hunt Lead Statistically

DALLAS (AP) — Ronnie Stanley of Baylor and Coolidge Hunt of Texas Tech lengthened their leads in the major categories of Southwest Conference football last week but Buddy Iles of Texas Christian was tied in pass receiving.

Iles didn't play and that's why Ronnie Goodwin of Baylor and Johnny Burrell of Rice moved and to a deadlock with the Texas Christian pass-snagger. Each has taken 17 throws. Goodwin for 285 yards, Burrell for 236 and Iles for 162.

Stanley passed for 227 yards with 13 completions against Texas to move far out front. He has 54 completions for 809 yards. Billy Cox Rice held second place although he got only 33 yards against Arkansas. He has connected on 38 for 462 yards.

Stanley also moved well to the fore in total offense with his 779 yards on 144 plays. George McKinney of Arkansas is second with 590 yards on 139 plays.

Hunt gained 48 yards against Tulane to make his ball-carrying total 429 yards on 102 runs. It gave him a 48-yard bulge over Sam Byer of Texas A&M who has 381 yards on 105 carries.

Babe Craig of Texas A&M again was idle but still held onto first place in punting with a 41.4 yards average. Randy Sims of Texas A&M continues to lead in

Arkansas Law Taken Under Advisement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has under advisement two appeals asking the overthrow of an Arkansas law requiring public school teachers to list organizations to which they have belonged or contributed for the past five years.

The court heard oral arguments Monday. It gave no indication when it might rule.

Attorneys for three teachers who filed suits challenging the law Act 10 of 1958 argued that it is intended to penalize teachers who might belong to such organizations as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Attorneys for the two Arkansas school districts defended the law as within a state's right to determine a teacher's fitness and qualifications.

Arguing against Act 10 were Edwin Dunaway of Little Rock and Robert L. Carter. Dunaway is attorney for Max Carr, former University of Arkansas music professor, and Ernest Gephart, Little Rock Central High School printing instructor. Carter of New York represents B.T. Shelton Little Rock Negro teacher.

Herschel H. Friday Jr. attorney for the Little Rock School Board argued that the state's right to ask information outweighs any possible abridgement of freedom.

He was supported by Louis L. Ramsay Jr. attorney for the Pine Bluff School District who ridiculed charges that the law would result in an exodus of teachers.

Dunaway noted that Carr and Gephart had listed all their professional organizations and swore they had never been members of any subversive organizations, but had refused to give the board information required by the law.

Mount Olive Goes for Democrats

MELBOURNE, Ark. (AP) — Voters in nearby Mount Olive township cast eight Democratic votes and one for the National States Rights party today.

There were no Republican votes in the small box which traditionally is the first in Arkansas to report its votes.

In 1956, Mount Olive voters cast 10 votes for Democrat Adlai Stevenson and 3 for President Eisenhower.

the ballot as the Republican nominee were unsuccessful.

With returns in from 220 of 238 precincts, Alford had 8,027 votes to 9,975 for Churchill.

Democratic Reps. E.C. Gathings of the First District Wilbur Mills of the Second J.W. Trimble of the Third Oren Harris of the Fourth and W.P. Norrell of the Sixth were unopposed.

Faubus took his own victory in stride and said he was not surprised that Kennedy carried Arkansas.

He said the poor showing of the States Rights ticket came as more of a shock.

The Governor attributed this to spirited campaigning on election eve by Republicans. Winthrop Rockefeller, millionaire chairman of the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission and Dr. H. B. Robins of Camden a former Democratic national committeeman both took to television to urge votes for Nixon.

Although Arkansas delegates supported Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas at the Democratic national convention, Arkansas had been expected to go for Kennedy, despite lukewarm support from Faubus and other elected officials.

The support got warmer, however, four days before the election when Sen. McClellan, in a table-pounding 40-minute speech, endorsed Kennedy at a party break fast. Faubus and other leaders followed McClellan's cue.

Even Alford, who as a staunch States Rights could be expected to oppose the liberal Kennedy, made a pro-Kennedy television speech Monday night.

Only Sen. J. William Fulbright was with Kennedy wholeheartedly from the outset. Fulbright worked in the Kennedy campaign from Washington and his foreign policy jobs at the administration may have contributed to Kennedy's success. Fulbright is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

While Arkansas Democrats took Kennedy to their bosom, they rejected the party's platform, particularly its strong civil rights plank, to the bitter end.

Lesser Democratic Party lights didn't wait for the top echelon to rally to Kennedy. They set up a state headquarters and campaigned more vigorously than at any time since 1928, the last time the Democrats tried to elect a Catholic president.

Kennedy's Catholicism (in a heavily Protestant predominant Baptist state) and the civil rights plank (in a strongly segregationist area) were two giant hurdles for the Democrats who have kept Arkansas with their national ticket in every election since 1872.

The 1960 vote compares with 1956's total of 213,287 for Democrat Adlai Stevenson and 186,287 for President Eisenhower.

That year marked the Republican

Arkansas Education Association.

Tax wary voters apparently decided the fate of the other two proposed amendments — No. 50 which would have doubled the constitutional limit on salaries of elected officials and No. 51 which would have liberalized taxing powers of cities.

There was no organized opposition to these measures. Support for Amendment 50 was limited, but the Arkansas Municipal League made a big pitch for No. 51, which the league said was needed to give cities taxing powers to improve and expand services.

Organized labor battled business and farming interests to the wire on the minimum wage proposal. Labor put the measure on the ballot by petition.

Stove Explosion Caused Tragedy

WEINER, Ark. (AP) — Five members of one family burned to death Sunday in a fire which swept through their five-room house after a heating stove exploded.

Aaron E. Hurst, 56, died in a hospital an hour after he leaped through a window, his clothes in flames.

The bodies of children Kenneth, 9; Wanda, 6; Gerlandine, 16, and Alice, 11, were found in the house.

Mrs. Hurst and two other children, David Eugene, 18, and Glenn, 14, were in Little Rock at the time of the fire.

Glenn had undergone an appendectomy in a hospital there.

W.A. Childs of Memphis, Tenn., who was visiting at a nearby house in the Una community near here, put out Hurst's burning clothing and tried to enter the house for the children, but was driven back by flames.
